

Consultation 1—Managing Access: Aim and Objectives Summary

Do you fish in The Wash? Tell us what you think about our aim and objectives for the policies that will determine access to the cockle and mussel fisheries in The Wash under the new permit byelaw in 2023.

What is this about?

Eastern IFCA are developing a new permit byelaw for the regulated bivalve fisheries in The Wash. This byelaw will replace the Wash Fishery Order 1992 when it expires in January 2023.

The purpose of this consultation with industry is to discuss the aim and objectives for the policies that will be the foundation to the permit system under the new byelaw. This is the first part of dialogue with industry that will continue as the policies are developed.

The aim and objectives for the new policies are the starting point, not the solution. They will help to provide a framework to develop new policies.

What will happen next?

This consultation runs from 5th November to 18th December 2020.

Overview

Below are the draft aim and objectives for the policies that will be the foundation to the permit system. The policies, via the permits, determine access to the fishery.

The aim and objectives have been developed taking in to account the concerns from Industry about the replacement of the WFO 1992, alongside our IFCA duties under the Marine and Coastal Access Act 2009.

The policies used to manage access to bivalve fisheries within The Wash have the following aim and objectives:

Aim

To achieve a level of access to the fishery that is equitable, and which supports the viability of varying business models, the conservation objectives of The Wash and stock sustainability.

Objectives

- To limit access to the fishery to a number of persons which will meet the aim
- To provide clarity and transparency to support effective business planning and continuity
- To enable a range of legitimate business arrangements that are compatible with known business models operating within the fishery
- To prioritise the continuity of active participants and business models that can provide evidence for best practice and legitimate business practices
- To facilitate new entrants into the fishery by enabling appropriate turnover and infrastructure to log suitability to enter the fishery
- To cater for standard business practices and issues which arise in operating within the fishing industry (such as vessel breakdowns and replacements)
- To prevent the permit from having its own value or becoming a tradable commodity.
